TUCK'S POST CARD

CARTE POSTALE. POSTKARTE.

Adderley Street. The view depicted shows the principal thoroughfare of Cape Town. The building in the right hand corner of the picture is the Dutch Reformed Church, and the handsome edifices on either side of the street mark the progress South Africa has made. Its former name was "Heerengracht '—"Gentleman's Canal' —so given on account of the stream of water which flowed its whole length, emptying itself into the sea. It was re-christened after the late Lord Norton, whose family name of Adderley it now bears.
